Robert S. Wolf
for White Collar Criminal Defense Litigation.

Robert represented a U.S. citizen charged with fraud and money laundering in connection with one of the first joint criminal prosecutions between the United States and the Russian Federation. He is frequently recognized as the first American attorney to be permitted into a Russian prison in an actual case, and quoted in various publications, including The New York Times, Wall Street Journal, Bloomberg News.

High-profile clients subject to unfavorable press or otherwise targeted by the media look to Robert for his extensive experience in crisis management and a well-earned, media-savvy reputation. These clients include high-net-worth individuals, financial industry professionals, real estate developers and celebrities.

His primary areas of practice are white collar criminal defense, securities litigation and government investigations, as well as corporate, commercial and real estate litigation. His vast litigation experience is much broader and includes representing corporations and individuals in all stages of federal and state civil, criminal and bankruptcy proceedings, in addition to regulatory enforcement proceedings and arbitrations. Robert regularly represents clients nationwide in significant securities fraud prosecutions and SEC enforcement actions. He tries cases and argues appeals in federal and state courts throughout the country and handles complex international litigations in connection with global intelligence investigations.

Robert is currently representing a former business associate of President Trump, in connection with the interference in the 2016 Presidential election. His clients span across the globe and include major corporations, financial institutions and individuals involved in significant business disputes.

His firm, Mosessian Singer, is primarily made up of Big Law trained lawyers who left big firms in order to provide their clients the same top-notch legal services, but without the enormous overhead and costs endemic at those firms. Lauletta Birnbaum is a boutique firm that is primarily made up of Big Law trained lawyers who left big firms in order to provide their clients the same top-notch legal services, but without the enormous overhead and costs endemic at those firms. Lauletta Birnbaum is a boutique firm that is primarily made up of Big Law trained lawyers who left big firms in order to provide their clients the same top-notch legal services, but without the enormous overhead and costs endemic at those firms.

Robert handles employment matters in the financial industry and elsewhere on behalf of both employers and employees. Among other things, he negotiated and obtained substantial severance packages for at-will employees in hostile environments; represented broker-dealers and hedge funds against employees in similar matters; and obtained a landmark ruling regarding the U-5 disclosure requirements for securities analysts.

While Greg is experienced in a full range of complex commercial litigation matters, Greg is widely recognized as one of the top business divorce lawyers in New Jersey, having successfully handled dozens of significant closely-held intra-company disputes throughout his career. Greg's firm, Lauletta Birnbaum, provides Greg's clients with an excellent platform to compete favorably with much larger law firms in terms of expertise, fee flexibility and cost.
